How it works

After taking our placement test, participants will join one of our morning classes according to their current German level (B1 – C1 level). In addition to the basic skills of reading, listening, writing and speaking, lessons also focus on grammar and vocabulary.

In the afternoon, evening and sometimes on the weekend, the student looks after the family's children and helps with light housework. This is expected to require about 18-20 hours per week. The intensive involvement in the daily family life significantly accelerates the learning of the German language.

The costs for accommodation in a single room, half board including an health and liability insurance are covered by the host family reducing the participant's financial outlay.
